Introduction

As with most reefers I started off in Fresh Water. As a kid I always had the dream of having a nice in-wall reef, but A) never thought I would own a home and B) have the time and patience it would require. But … I was lucky enough to meet my wife Sarah who settled me down and after many attempts to buy a house that was suitable, we decided to build a house around the fish room

Current Setup

The current setup is my first attempt and I was lucky enough to find MASA right at the beginning and become friends with several reefers including Rod the Reefer and Tuskfish. They gave some well needed advice that saved me a lot of pain down the track, most of which centered around getting rid of the trickle setup. The tank is a 6 x 2 x 2, around 600litres and nearly 2 years old. Being located in its own room the stand didn’t have to look overly special. I build the cupboard/stand at a metre high and welded some 3 inch box steel and located them in a couple of spots underneath. If I could change one thing it would be the position of those. It has now restricted the size of my sump.

Filtration

The sump/fuge is 750mm x 400mm x 500mm which I now wish was bigger.

The usual 3 compartment - Live Rock – RDSB (100mm)/MACRO Algae – Return D/T holds about 80litres of L/R and a 100mm DSB.

The skimmer is now housed in the garage in another cupboard to help move some of the noise out of that room when the door is open.

The garage also houses a 600litre rain water tank to store NSW/ASW and an RO unit.
